BOSTON, July 8.

THE house of representatives in their last session, appointed the hon. JAMES OTIS, TIMOTHY RUGGLES, and OLIVER PARTRIDGE, Esqrs. a committee to meet the committees of the assemblies of the WHOLE CONTINENT, if they see cause, at New-York, the 1st of October, to unite in a petition to his Majesty and the parliament, for relief under the insupportable grievance of the STAMP-ACT, &c.—It is hoped neither the governor of Virginia, nor any other governor on the continent will think this so improper a step as to DISSOLVE their assemblies to prevent it.—For we cannot think any of their excellencies and honours altogether unacquainted with the act of parliament made immediately after the GLORIOUS REVOLUTION, which declares IT IS THE RIGHT OF THE SUBJECT TO PETITION THE KING—and—PARLIAMENTS SIT FOR THE REDRESS OF GRIEVANCES.

PHILADELPHIA, August 1.

Extract of a letter from London, June 8.

"Lord Bute and all that party are totally routed, to the joy of all people here."

BOSTON, August 5.

Some Minutes relating to affairs at as are collected from letters received by Capt. Blake.

The parliament was prorogued the latter end of May: A few days before which the principal officers of state were unexpectedly made acquainted with the king's intentions of making some changes in several of the highest departments of government; and accordingly the parliament, notwithstanding they had finished all the business of the session, was adjourned from day to day for the space of three days successively, in order, as is usual in those cases, to issue writs for new elections in case of any seats in the house being vacated by promotion to office.——In the mean time it was publickly known that no less a personage than the D. of C—b—d went down to Mr. P. at his seat at Hayes (Mr. P. himself being ill of the gout) with the K—'s instructions to desire him to take upon him the principal management of public affairs, and to let him know that he might nominate to every principal office, and bring in with him such persons as he pleased—This offer, after a long conference with the D. Mr. P. declined accepting, urging, it is said, his increasing ill health—however that was, 'tis very certain, the D. returned to court with Mr. P's negative to the offer, which occasioned no small consternation and bustle at court.—The next day Mr. P. and his brothers in law Earl T. and Mr. J. G—le became reconciled to their brother Mr. G. G—le, to whom they had not spoke in two or three years, and all supp'd together at Lord T—'s.——A council was soon held, and instead of the present ministry being turned out the following changes were made, viz. The Hon. S. M—ze, brother of a certain unpopular nobleman had the privy seal of Scotland taken from him in favour of Lord F. C—l, [illegible] changes of any consequence that happened, and 'tis said, and generally believed, that the D. of N—tle has publickly declared that none of his friends will accept any post under the government, if offered, to the disobliging of the present ministry; and it is certain that several persons of distinction of the opposition who had not spoke to Mr. G. G—le for a long time, went to his levee immediately after the aforesaid overture to Mr. P. and his declining it.

These seemingly strange and contradictory events and appearances are generally accounted for in England, by supposing that the before-mentioned unpopular gentleman expected under all the circumstances of things, that the present ministry would have submitted in some considerable measure to be advised by him in the conduct of the public business; but finding them in that particular quite untractable, that he advised the bringing in Mr. P. again, in hopes of being able to make some better terms with him; but if that could not be done, that by this means the people would be gratified, and that consequently at least the public clamours, which have all along seemed ultimately to fall on the said nobleman, would subside and give him time and opportunity to recover himself.—All this, it is said, Mr. P. saw thro', and being persuaded that the overtures thus made to him proceeded not so much from choice and inclination, as from design to answer particular personal purposes, not only refus'd to accept the same, but immediately threw the weight of his influence into the other scale, as he now perceived both parties were embarked in the same bottom, viz. That of opposing the influence of the favourite.—'Tis said that Mr. P. told the D. that he never would undertake and be accountable to the public for his conduct in an office of state, while another who sustained no office, and consequently would not be accountable for the advice he should give in public matters, would be continually going between him and the K—. —— That he thought in his conscience, Mr. G. G—le was the fittest man in the kingdom to manage the business of t[he Tr]easury, and that he did not think it was in his power, under a[ll circ]umstances, to render any essential service either to the K. or th[e p]ublic by the proffer'd honour.

The situation at court to be sure by all ac[co]unts is very particular, —The ministry given plainly to underst[and] that they were to go out and others take their places—the pr[incip]al person intended to be brought in, with such others as he shou[ld n]ame, refusing to come in for the very reason that occasioned the determination to make a change—and in consequence of this, the same threatened ministry continued in the administration, because those who were formerly their enemies, now, by this step made their friends, refuse to lend their aid in order to their being got in, by declining to supply their places.

Various are the guesses of the connoisseurs of what will happen to the ministry in the course of the summer, and what may be done in parliament next session, in consequence of these events; but time only will discover what these will be, or whether any thing.

Extracts of late intelligence from England.

"I congratulate Great-Britain and the colonies on the happy restoration of Mr. P— to his former influence on business. 'Tis certain he had every thing offered him, and like himself has refused every thing but the honour of serving his king and country in the most difficult conjunctures. This, by one of the finest strokes of policy, he has on a late occasion most essentially effected. I venture to predict, that when the whole shall be known, his noble behaviour in this instance will be as highly extolled, and justly celebrated as any part of his heroic conduct during the late war. I am also to assure you the tide begins to set in favour of North-America, and you may depend on it a torrent will soon sweep away all your enemies. You will also have the pleasure of once more seeing your friends in the zenith of favour. I have good reason to believe that before next Christmas it will be as dangerous in South-Britain to scribble and harangue against the colonies, as it now is to attempt a vindication of Lord B—, and his junto. 'Tis certain his Lordship will never again be so happy here as he may be north of Tweed. I must also take leave positively to declare, that all measures [illegible] to the interests of America ever yet taken, have been [illegible] proposed, but even warmly recommended by mean mercenary hirelings or [illegible] among yourselves, who for a little filthy lucre would at any time betray every

The BRIGANTINE CAROLINA-PACKET,

(JOHN HARRISON, Master)

A VERY fast sailor, and as commodious a vessel for passengers as any that uses this port, will sail for NEW-YORK in ten days. For passage, apply to said master, or ROBERT SMITH.

N. B. If a freight can be got for said vessel, she will take it in, otherwise proceed in ballast. Apply as above.

To be Sold,

By GEORGE LIVINGSTON,

THE plantation or tract of land, known by the name of the DISTILLERY, about four miles from Charles-Town, by water; pleasantly situated on a bold Creek, containing, by a survey made by the late Mr. William Wilkins, 795 acres.

There are on said land three tapey-buildings, one of which is near 90 feet long, and 41 wide, the other two about 30 by 20 wide; a pretty good dwelling-house, large barn and other out-houses, two sets of new indico vats, a lime vat and pump, two dams of water, one of which containing about ten acres, is near to, and almost joins the largest of the tapey-buildings.

This plantation was bought of Doctor Samuel Carne, with a large copper still, two iron ones, and other implements for distilling, and stands in the same manner as when bought: Not more than one hundred and thirty acres of the land is cleared, about eighty of which is under a new fence.

N. B. The said plantation is very convenient to the Market, has plenty of fresh water on it, and a large summer range.

Jonathan Sarrazin,

Jeweller, at the Tea Kettle and lamp, the corner of Broad and Church-Street,

TAKES this method of acquainting Mr. Petrie's, and his own friends and customers, that he has bought Mr. Petrie's stock on hand, consisting of a great variety of sterling plate and jewellery; most of which has been but a few months in the province, all bought of the best hands for ready money, and most elegantly finished; which, together with a large assortment he himself has imported in the Beaufain, captain Curling, and the Mary, capt. Glazonby, he flatters himself he can sell as cheap as any one in the province. He expects in the Union, captain Smith, another large assortment of jewellery and plate, and as he proposes to keep up a constant supply, by every opportunity, of the most fashionable articles, he hopes for the favour of Mr. Petrie's, and the continuance of his own friends custom, which shall be gratefully acknowledged. He has sent to him, a number of diamond rings, to dispose of on commission, which he will sell together for cost and charges, or seperate, at a small advance for cash. All kinds of jewellery and silversmith's work done at his shop, as usual, and with the greatest dispatch: where the highest price is given for old plate and jewels.

Wanted immediately,

AS an OVERSEER, a single man, that perfectly understands the making of Indico. Such a one will meet with good encouragement, applying to right, liberty and privileges of their fellow subjects. All men of sense in England are now convinced, that they have been most egregiously deceived and deluded by the accounts received from placemen in the colonies, or the factors of such places, who are and ever have been here from them."

LONDON, May 21.

SUNDAY last his royal highness the duke of Cumberland, the duke of Newcastle, and several other noblemen, waited on Mr. Pitt at Hayes in Kent, and did him the honour to dine with him; from whence a great change in the ministry is hourly expected.

Sunday last his royal highness was at court, and had near an hour's private audience of his Majesty; and returned to Windsor at six o' clock, but is expected in town again on affairs of importance.

The master weavers of Spitalfields have assured their journeymen, that the mercers have come to a resolution to bind themselves in a bond of 500 l. not to sell any French silks, and at the same time advising them to keep themselves quiet, as in a short time they should have business sufficient; which declaration, it is hoped, will be attended with the most happy consequences.

It is now said the approaching ministerial changes will produce a change also of certain British ambassadors, and other his Majesty's servants at foreign courts, in order to give due influence to some limited measures, we are informed, will most certainly be adopted.

There is but too much reason to fear that one cause of distress among the poor weavers is the great nursery of smuggling, which is suspected to be in the bowels of this metropolis. The quantities of French silks, seized now and then, are nothing in comparison to what is permitted to be amongst us under the pretence of privilege. Quere. What would the French government say, if our ambassador at Paris was to order over by his domestics, &c. great quantities of English silks, and he should take every means to dispose of them, in order to hurt the manufactures of France?

They write from Scotland, that several foreign agents have lately appeared in the northern parts of that kingdom, to inlist Highlanders into the service of his Prussian Majesty.

Wednesday evening Mr. Shuter spoke an epilogue riding on an ass at Covent-garden house; but it being somewhat difficult to get the doggish animal forward on the stage, the house seemed very much diverted with Mr. Shuter's ridiculous situation; that excellent humourist, however, soon changed the laugh AT him, to one WITH him, by declaring the ass was greatly disconcerted, it being his first appearance on the stage. This happy get-off was received with the approbation it merited, and he went through the epilogue to the universal satisfaction of the audience.

We hear that this morning eleven of the journeymen weavers, deputed from the whole body, went down to Westminster, as by the act relative to tumultuous assemblies, it is deemed a riot if twelve persons meet together; in this instance the poor weavers very prudently endeavoured not to be deemed rioters, by sending a less number.

It is said that a new body of laws will soon be compiled, for the future government of the Isle of Man.

MAY 23.

Tuesday morning their Majesties came to town from Richmond to St. James's, after which there was a great council, which did not break up till near four o' clock; at which his royal highness the duke of Cumberland assisted.

Her royal highness the princess dowager of Wales was at court.

Tuesday the right hon. William Pitt, Esq; came to town from Hayes.

Yesterday there was a great council at St. James's, which sat several hours.

Monday a French lady of great distinction took the oaths of allegiance and supremacy to the government, in the court of King's-Bench, she being, it is said, possessed of considerable property in the Grenades, one of the islands ceded by the late peace.

It is said his royal highness the duke of Cumberland was with his Majesty till three o' clock yesterday morning at the Queen's palace.

Some of the current reports of yesterday were, that his royal highness the duke of Cumberland will be created captain-general of the forces; George Grenville, Esq; secretary of state for the northern department; Lord Northington, president of the council; hon. Charles Yorke, Lord chancellor, and Sir Joseph Yorke, secretary at war.

It is said that the affair of Mr. Almon, and certain other proceedings now depending in the courts at Westminster, will soon be dropt, as a prelude to that happy unanimity expected to result from a change in the political system so much talked of at the other end of the town.

MAY 25.

Next week the right hon. the Earl of Bute will set out from his house in South-Audley-Street for Luton-Hoo, in Bedfordshire; from whence, after staying a few days, we hear, he will proceed to his seat of Mount-Stuart, in Scotland, there to spend the remainder of the summer.

The magistrates of Hamburgh, at the request of the Russian minister, are making great search and enquiry to discover the author and printer of a tragedy, "Innocence oppressed; or, the death of "Iwan, emperor of Russia, by J. F. Talon," dedicated to the Baron de Liebenstein.

Private letters from Warsaw inform, that a treaty of marriage is actually on the carpet between his Polish Majesty, and one of the princesses of the house of Austria.

Letters from Copenhagen inform us, that they have lately launched there a new man of war, of ninety guns, called the Lion of the North, supposed to be the largest ever built in that kingdom.

Thursday there was a very numerous and splendid levee at St. James's; and afterwards a council, which did not break up till near four o' clock: Their Majesties afterwards dined at the Queen's palace.

Their majesties have been at the Queen's palace for these four nights past, during which several private councils have been held.

A scheme is on foot for building a bridge across the Thames, from Twickenham to Richmond Horse-Ferry, which has been much wanted for some time.

It is confidently asserted, that a certain nobleman will shortly be created duke of Man.

We are told that several commoners will be ennobled soon after the rising of parliament; among others it is said, that the gallant Sir William Johnson, will be raised to the dignity of a viscount of Ireland.

MAY 26.

By the dispatches received this week from Paris, the court of Versailles appear really disposed to give no obstructions to the English commerce on the coast of Africa.

MAY 28.

His Majesty has been six times at the house of peers in the course of the last sessions of parliament.

Yesterday night the right hon. Hans Stanley, Esq; gave an elegant ball and supper to near 400 ladies and gentlemen, at the George Inn in Newport, in the Isle of Wight, on his taking upon him the government of that island.

Friday the board of Ordnance contracted for shipping to carry over three companies of the royal regiment of artillery to New-York, to relieve part of that regiment on that station, who are to return home.

We hear that the 1st of June next will be launched at Milford-Haven, his Majesty's ship Prince of Wales, built by Mr. Bird of London, and Mr. Fisher of Liverpool. She is one of the largest 74-gun ships in the navy.

An English ship is now in the Elbe, taking in a number of German Palatine passengers for West Florida.

We hear that the right hon. Commodore Byron, now commander in chief of the English squadron in the East-Indies, will be included in the next promotion of flag officers.

Some letters from Hamburgh advise, that a quadruple northern alliance is now on the carpet; which, if brought to an issue, will surprize all Europe.

It is reported that several considerable alterations in the law will soon take place.

May 30.

Letters from Paris advise, that Thomas Dorsel, late governor of Guadaloupe, has at length obtained justice. The sentence of the court martial, pronounced against him at Martinico the 15th of January, 1761, and executed at Rochfort in September, 1762, was broke by a brevet, signed by the king's own hand the 6th instant, enregistered the 15th instant, in a court-martial held for that purpose, at the Hotel des Invalides, by which he is discharged from all the penalties pronounced against him in the first court-martial, and restituted in his honours, reputation, and all other prerogatives. This signal piece of justice is the result of the strictest examination into Mr. Nadau's conduct before, during, and after the siege of Guadaloupe.

Tuesday Baron Rovkano, a very learned nobleman of Aleppo, arrived in town from Holland.

They write from Brest, that 13 battalions arrived there the 25th of last month, to be employed in vigorously carrying on the new works for the defence and enlargement of that harbour, where a navigable inland canal is to be made, capable of receiving the largest ships for shelter, beyond the reach of bomb or cannon shot.

We are informed, that last Saturday's dispatches from the Earl of Hertford at Paris, contained the only reasonable proposals on the part of France, which have hitherto been made, respecting the payment of Canada bills, and which, considering the present low state of their finances, it is thought would be accepted.

They write from Petersburg, that the Empress of Russia proposes to make a journey to Revel this summer, and to carry into that port 22 ships of the line.

Tuesday the right hon. George Grenville and his lady dined with Earl Temple at his house in Pall-mall.

A French ship arrived at Rochfort, when the last letters were received from thence, with several prisoners on board from Cape Francois, on account of the late insurrection at St. Domingo.

This day being the anniversary of his Majesty's birth-day, who entered into the 28th year of his age, the morning was ushered in with ringing of bells; at noon the park and tower guns were fired, and their Majesties received the compliments of the nobility, foreign ministers, &c. The court was as brilliant as has been known for some years.

It is reported that the Right Hon. Lord Viscount Weymouth will be created an Earl.

JUNE 1.

In the course of last sessions of parliament, 223 bills received the royal assent.

We are informed from Birmingham, that a person in that town has compleated one of the greatest pieces of mechanism, of the kind, supposed to be in Europe: It consists of a lock, so constructed that, when fastened upon a door, and attempted to be unlocked, or forced open by robbers, gives an alarm by bells, and at the same time discharges a brace of pistols upon the person so attempting: The other parts of the work are done in a masterly manner, the wards being of a singular kind, and the bow of the key is neatly pierced, representing the King's Arms in full proportion.

JUNE 4.

The history of England, or perhaps that of any other nation, hardly furnishes an example so glorious to a subject as that of his being called twice from retirement, by the command of his Sovereign, and with the voice of the people, to restore to good order the perplexed affairs of his country. So peculiar an honour however distinguishes Mr. Pitt, for whom so high an esteem, for shining abilities, and inflexible integrity, appears to be rivetted in the hearts of a whole people, as no influence can withdraw, nor any calumnies lessen; and their confidence in him is so great, and has been so lasting, that it is no extravagance to say, he has an actual command over their fortunes and lives; on which good men may congratulate themselves in a corrupt age, from seeing that real virtue wants not incitements, since, when discovered, it excites such attachments as fare its most satisfactory rewards. The Sovereign honours himself most by honouring those who possess most of the confidence of his people; for in their amplest trusts his highest power must consist. It is impossible to describe truly the universal satisfaction that is now felt and expressed at the expectation which is entertained of high glory to his majesty, and as high happiness to his people, from all future state measures. They know the goodness of his royal heart is such, that he has no distinct objects, nor have they any separate views; they [illegible] a whole community.

Sir William Johnson is now talked of to succeed a certain American governor, who is expected in England this summer.

Yesterday the Right Honourable the Lords of the Treasury were pleased to appoint John Freemantle, Esq; Secretary of his Majesty's customs, in the room of William Wood, Esq; deceased.

His Majesty has appointed Col. Sir John St. Clair, Bart. to be Deputy Quarter-master General of his Majesty's forces in North-America. And,

Col. Henry Bouquet, of the 60th regiment of foot, to be Brigadier-General of his Majesty's forces serving in North-America.

A few days a board of longitude was held, and we hear that Mr. Harrison is to discover his secret upon the payment of 6500 l. more; which terms we are told are agreed upon.

JUNE 6.

Letters from Ratisbon of the 20th past, advise, that there arrived there from Ulm, 160 families, natives of the Dutchy of Suabia and the Palatinate, consisting of 700 persons, men, women, and children included, under the direction of a Russian Commissary; they are going to Anhalt-Zerbst, and from thence to Lubec, where they are to embark for some part of the Russian empire, in order to form a colony there.

They write from Paris, that the King is so well satisfied with the advantages accruing from the edict which he issued in August 1764, concerning the civil government of towns where the number of inhabitants amounts to 4,500 and upwards, that his Majesty has resolved to extend the regulations established by this edict, throughout all the towns in the kingdom.

Private letters from Leghorn mention, that the naval power of Paoli is at present so much superior to any force the Genoese can fit out against him, that a resolution has been taken by the republic to call on the assistance of France, by requesting a number of cruizers on the Corsican station to join in one general attack on the port of Centuri, where the rebels were said to have upwards of 20 armed vessels.

Tuesday his Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland dined with their Majesties at St. James's. Their Majesties lay there that night. Yesterday there was a levee at court; and in the afternoon their Majesties set out for Richmond.

A fine brick pier is ordered this summer to be built at Dover, 140 feet long, and 14 broad.

Several hundred tons of American hemp are expected over this summer from Carolina, Boston, &c. &c. in consequence of the late act in favour of the importers.
